Item 7.01 Regulation FD Disclosure

Televisa, S.A. de C.V. (“Televisa”) and the Company are parties to a program license agreement that provides our three television networks with some of their programming. The Company currently pays a license fee to Televisa for its programming, subject to certain upward adjustments.

On May 9, 2005, Televisa filed a complaint in the United States District Court Central District of California alleging breach by us of our program license agreement with Televisa, including breach for our alleged failure to pay Televisa royalties attributable to revenues from one of Televisa’s programs and the Company’s allegedly unauthorized editing of certain Televisa programs and related copyright infringement claims.

In relation to such claims, Televisa seeks monetary relief in an amount not less than $1.5 million for breach and, for anticipated breach, declaratory relief against the Company’s ability to recover amounts of approximately $5 million previously paid in royalties to Televisa, and an injunction against our alteration of Televisa programming without Televisa’s consent.

The Company denies any breach or anticipated breach of the program license agreement with Televisa and intends to vigorously defend the lawsuit.

SIGNATURES
